I am currently working as a part-time intern at Parry Labs, a Maryland-based defense company. They have extended a job offer to me, which I have accepted. The start date is set for June 7, 2024, and I will be moving to Maryland a few weeks prior. The company has outlined that they will assist with moving expenses and travel costs. I have been hired onto the Hardware team to help develop and test the physical hardware that Parry Labs produces. Although I am a Computer Science student, hardware has always been an interest of mine. Now, I have the chance to combine topics from both Computer Science (algorithms, AI, etc.) and Computer Engineering (embedded systems, embedded security, etc.).
